INTERNET SITES

Canadian Liver Foundation

<http://www.liver.ca>

The Canadian Liver Foundation is a national nonprofit organization. It has an excellent website, which provides general information about maintaining liver health and also the various diseases which may affect this organ. The organization publishes several helpful brochures which can be ordered or downloaded at the site, and there is information concerning community support and education programs across Canada. Some brochures are available in several languages other than English.

Canadian Cancer Society

<http://tinyurl.com/3amlol>

The CCS is a national organization whose purpose is the eradication of cancer and improving the quality of life for people living with the disease. As well as comprehensive information about primary liver cancer, the site provides facts on support, risk reduction and the latest research.

American Liver Foundation

<http://www.liverfoundation.org>

The ALF is the U.S. leading nonprofit organization promoting liver health and disease prevention. A pull-down menu in the left hand column at the homepage provides access to comprehensive information about the different types of liver disease. A number of brochures are available for downloading in several languages and there is a useful section on current clinical trials.

British Liver Trust

<http://www.britishlivertrust.org.uk>

This is a national UK charity for adults with liver disease. It has a well designed and easy to navigate website which provides information about liver diseases, research, and sources of support. In addition there are excellent sections on diagnosis, diet, and transplants. Brochures are available in English, Bengali, Hindi, and Chinese.

National Digestive Diseases Information Clearinghouse

<http://tinyurl.com/k4nvv>

This is part of the U.S. National Institutes of Health, and its mandate is to distribute information on digestive diseases. At the alphabetic display, click on Liver to access comprehensive information on the different forms of liver disease, which includes causes, symptoms, diagnosis, and treatment options. Alternatively, at the alphabetic display click on a specific heading such as Cirrhosis or Hepatitis.

Medline Plus <http://www.medlineplus.gov>

This authoritative site has links to articles and features on the liver. At the Medline homepage, click on Health Topics, the first link listed. This will take you to a page where you can select your topic from an alphabetical display – click on L and then follow the link for Liver Diseases, Liver Cancer, or Liver Transplantation. You can also look under alternative headings like Cirrhosis, Hepatitis, Reye Syndrome, Wilson Disease etc.
